Recognition for Excellence in Environmental Protection

2012 marked our 16th year of designating environmental partners as OSPRA Award recipients. Over the years, we have identified small and large organizations from varied elements of Texas' coastal industries for making significant contributions to coastal environmental protection. In an effort to showcase hardworking Texans going the extra mile to protect our natural resources, we have made a few changes to the application process. Please pay close attention to the questions and word limitations.

How to Nominate an Organization or Individual

Submit a completed form to any Texas General Land Office Oil Spill Prevention and Response Program office. The application is available on our website and may be completed and submitted electronically.

Example nominees include: Government, Education, Industry, Nonprofit Groups, Public Agency Divisions, Individuals, Teams, Vessel Operators, Oil Handling Facilities, Contractors, Consultants, Spill Response Organizations, Suppliers, Marinas, Shipyards, Educational Organizations or Institutions, Research Organizations, Spill Response Cooperatives and any other organization that has met the criteria identified on this application.

Criteria for a Successful Nomination

The successful nominee must have displayed a consistent and noteworthy effort to exceed basic compliance with the Oil Spill Prevention and Response Act of 1991 or taken other proactive steps that enhance the protection and preservation of Texas coastal resources. Specific examples of noteworthy performance during the period January 1, 2012, through December 31, 2012, will be reviewed for the selection of award winners.

Judging and Presentation of Awards

Winners will be chosen by a panel appointed by the Texas General Land Office. Awards will be presented to the winners at a venue of their choice. In addition, a press release will be distributed with information about the award and winner, a notice will be posted on the Land Office website, and featured in our quarterly newsletter, The Responder. Becoming an OSPRA award winner not only generates publicity for and public recognition of your company or organization, it also allows the Land Office to recognize excellence in environmental protection.
